Do I have to pay taxes on a telecommunications service?

Depending on the types of communications you provide customers or that your products access, you might be liable to collect and remit taxes and fees including 911 and 988 fees, the Federal Universal Service Fund (FUSF) fee, telecommunications relay services (TRS) fees, utility user tax (UUT), and the communications services tax (CST).

What is communication service tax?

There's no single communication service tax. The term communications tax refers to a multitude of taxes, fees, and surcharges assessed at the federal, state, and local levels. In addition, many businesses that are subject to communications tax must also pay sales and use tax on their products and services.

Do you have to pay communications tax?

In addition, many businesses that are subject to communications tax must also pay sales and use tax on their products and services. The wide variety of rates, rules, and regulations across jurisdictions makes communications tax compliance especially difficult and some states are trickier than others.

Can a telecom provider accurately bill taxes?

It is virtually impossible for a telecom provider with any scale to accurately bill taxes without such software (Source: taxconnex.com). Many telecom billing systems have a tax module or third-party plugin that handles this. Smaller providers operating in only one state and with static offerings might manage manually, but even they risk error.
